

Pioneer / Insight Combination

It might seem that the Pioneering spirit and the Insightful observer are not characteristics, which are typically seen together and this is why your profile is quite unusual and has a unique offering to those around you.

You are not predictable in the way you approach relationships and situations and often surprise people who view you as quite mild mannered, when you come out with a very direct comment or act assertively. You value harmony with others and will work harder than others to maintain peaceful happy relationships. However, should you be challenged or feel strongly about something, you will step up and clearly assert yourself.

Empowering yourself

Be confident in the goals you set yourself – it is highly likely you will achieve them. Because you are both careful as well as determined, your ability to see tasks through or to achieve your goals in a well planned manner, is exceptional. You go about your life in a calm yet determined fashion and more often than not are quietly confident that you will achieve whatever you set out to do.

Empowering others

People around you will respond very well to your caring and calm nature but will also have a healthy respect for your ability to articulate your own position and not to be taken for granted or pushed aside.

Conflict

When in a conflict situation you are likely to seek the best way forward for everyone, but at the same time to be confident in putting your views forward. You handle conflict very well and can come out of a conflict situation with good relationships still in place.

Careers

You would be well suited to roles that require you to be both decisive and insightful like Professional Development, Corporate Training and Teaching.
